Note from the Principal's desk“

“Better than a thousand days of diligent study is one day with a great teacher”, goes a popular Japanese proverb. And for a teacher, there can be no greater joy than to be with their pupils, inspiring, informing and guiding them.

Therefore, it was a happy time for the teachers and students of The Asian School, to be back within the portals of the school and this time, the little ones too. To see the toddlers, walking in, with a spring in their step albeit with a mask on their excited faces, could warm the cockles of any heart.

All precautions and protocols in place, the school is near normal and kudos to the parents too for their strong support to help us realise our goal of normalcy.

Over the past months, during the course of the transition from online to hybrid to offline, the school has been conducting a number of curricular and co-curricular activities; a glimpse of which is being presented in this Potpourri. These are a reflection of the collective efforts of the students and the staff...
